

Purpose

Appendix 3 provides guidance on how the licensing service standards, their criteria, and ‘things that must be considered’ apply to placement services submitting an application for licensing.

Placement services are grouped into one of three models:

1. Family based care services – with departmentally approved carers only (e.g. foster and relative (kinship) care services) – provide overnight care in the homes of departmentally approved carers who are recruited, trained, assessed and supported by the service.
2. Family based care services – with departmentally approved carers and direct care staff (e.g. specialist foster care services) – which:
 - provide overnight care in the homes of departmentally approved carers who are recruited, trained, assessed and supported by the service; and
 - engage direct care¹ staff (e.g. youth workers) to work with children and young people who are placed in the care of approved carers affiliated with the service.
3. Non-family based care services (e.g. residential care services and supported independent living arrangements) – provide overnight care in premises other than a carer’s own home. Care is provided by paid staff or contracted workers. Care may be provided to groups of children and young people or individuals.

How to read the table

The following table indicates which ‘things that must be considered’ need to be evidenced by each of the above service models when demonstrating compliance with the service standards.² The following symbols are used:

- ✘ this does not apply to the service model
- ✓ this does apply to the service model
- ✓* this applies to the service model, but only in relation to the services provided by the direct care staff engaged by the service.

Any further questions

If you have any questions about how the service standards apply to your service please contact your Community Resource Officer.

¹ Direct care refers to care provided to a child or young person in the care of a departmentally approved carer by a worker(s) engaged by the service. Such workers are additional to those engaged by the service to coordinate, support and monitor approved carers or to manage and administer the operations of the service. Examples of direct care staff include youth workers or counsellors.

² It is important to note that compliance with the service standards is demonstrated by providing evidence for the relevant criteria in the service standards, not the ‘things that must be considered’. The ‘things that must be considered’ are intended as considerations only. They are provided to give advice on how to find evidence within your service to demonstrate compliance with the criteria. Some ‘things that must be considered’ will be relevant to some placement service types and not others.
